What is the funniest thing that happened to you recently?

It happened when someone called to conduct an interview. The surroundings was too loud when I answered the call so I can barely hear the person on the other line is saying. I captured when he said my name and I answered, "Yes, this is..Yes, this is..She/her". I'm not really fond of doing interviews since it makes me feel anxious. The interviewer was kind enough to let it pass, but I was laughing at the back of my mind. It was really embarrassing and funny at the same.

What kind of situation can create stress for you and, when that happens, what do you do to cope?

There are a lot of instances which makes me feel stress, but one of which is what is currently happening around that we can see publicly over Social Media -- crimes and natural calamities all over Newsfeed. That makes me feel terrified that there are people who are striving for a living after the storm, there are also people who are battling for whatever they believe is right. So what I did is not to dwell on Social Media and pray for everyone's safety.
