What have you learned during the pandemic?

During the pandemic, I have learned on how to make beverages that I haven't bothered to do before such as making Dalgona coffee. Making it was time consuming since you have to consistently mix in the ingredients for a few minutes! And that one can be exhausting even for at least 5 minutes so it would be best if you have an electric mixer to help you. Being at stuck at home during the pandemic made me learn on how to be patient as well since when you go out grocery shopping, you will have to wait for your turn in a line and also keep social distancing to slow down the spread of the virus. So all in all, it taught me on how to be patient whether in making the coffee or waiting patiently in the line.

If you had to choose one, would you consider yourself a big-picture person or a detail-oriented person?

If I were to choose, I consider myself as a detail-oriented person. I choose the latter because I believe looking for details is best in achieving goals. I believe being accurate does give you a sense of piece of mind because it saves you from any trouble and as they say, truth sets you free. Missing any detail can lead to inaccuracies and will not give you a good result.
