If you inherited so much money that you never had to work again, how would you spend your time?

If I inherited so much money that I never have to work again, I would spend it first with my family since they are always the main reason why I wanted to become rich and successful. We can go on a trip outside the city, province or even the country since it was our dream to have a trip together. Aside from trips we also like to cook and eat at home so that would also be another option for me on how I'm going to spend my time with them. We can spend money on making our kitchen at home big. We also love to watch movies but since the pandemic affected the entertainment industry so what I will do is I would buy the biggest screen size of a television and I will put it at home so that we can still experience the feeling of watching movies in a bigger screen just like in the cinemas. Since I have much money I wouldn't mind spending all of it for my family and give them their needs and wants. Providing my family a better life is what always motivates me and keep me going.

If you are a plant, what plant would you be and why?

If I am a plant, I prefer to be a sunflower. One fact about sunflowers is that they are always facing the sun no matter what direction the sun is. Just like a sunflower I always look up to the sun or in other words I always look at the bright and positive side of my life. Since sunflowers always look up to the sun, obviously they have nothing to look at if its a rainy day or a cloudy day and they would just stay in their positions until they see the sun again. As a human, I also experience hard times and difficulties sometimes that's why I stop or take a rest from everything. Troubles in life gives us frustration, doubt, and conflicts but we should also not forget that life isn't always bright. For me the most important thing is being strong just like a sunflower standing tall and proud and also to be patient. Patient enough to wait for the time that you will realize and see again how much beautiful and bright your life is. When that time comes that you will be able to see the sun again, that's the time where you can shine and be the most beautiful person you are.
