If you could be a teacher for a day, what would you teach and why?

I would definitely teach English as I have started my career by communicating and expressing myself in English. This language is a globalization tool bridging people from all over the world. Not only does it connect industries, but it also brings different cultures together in sharing ideas. When minds from different ethnic, political, and spiritual backgrounds come together, it becomes the first step to making a better and more unified world. The future does not only rest on the next generation but on people who are willing to learn new skills and languages to better work with each other.

Is it better to plan or be spontaneous? Explain your answer.

It depends on what is on the line. If it is a major life decision, then it is definitely better to plan. If you are planning your next vacation, then it is better to be spontaneous as most planned trips do not usually turn out the way you expect them to. Planning or being spontaneous both have its advantages and disadvantages.

The important thing is you know the type of decision you are trying to make. Only then can you choose between planning your next step or letting fate decide. Keep in mind that regardless of what you choose, what happens next is out of your hands. You can learn from the experience or enjoy the moment.
