Are you a listener or a talker?

I am quite a bit of a listener more than a talker. How do I say so? It is because I usually hate talking especially with the kind of personality that I have. I tend to be shy in front of others but is confident however if needed. On the other hand, I prefer listening because of the fact that you get to hear the ideas and thoughts of the people around you which is very interesting. And being a good listener made me keen and observant with small details. Most importantly, I love listening because learning comes with it.

If you could compare yourself with any animal, which would it be and why?

If I get to compare myself with an animal, I would choose a dog. As we all know most people call a dog "a man's bestfriend", and for me I can also be one. Not literally a bestfriend but I can be anybody's friend. Same with dogs, I will only bite if you do me wrong. I am also trainable and a good follower which can also be seen with most of our dogs. Moreover, I am also loyal when it comes to commitment whether at work or with personal relationships. Lastly, I can be of help in any possible way that I can.
