

1.If anything was possible, what would your dream job be, and why?

There are a lot of things I really want to do. I want to be a nurse, a flight attendant, a photographer, a physical therapist, and a lot more things. I want to do things that I think would help me and can also benefit others. If it is possible, I want to be a nurse. Being a nurse was my first dream when I was a child. I always took care of my sister and brother when they were not feeling well before when we were kids. And ever since the pandemic started where we don't know how long we or someone around us will stay, I thought about my parents. If someone will take care of them when they become really old, I want it to be me. Being there and taking care of them are two different things.

2. Have you ever experienced a stressful situation in your past workplace (college if fresh graduate), what was it and how did you overcome it?

The most stressful situation I experienced in college was when we had to do paperwork a day before its deadline. I just happened to see that requirement when I was browsing our school's online portal. Usually, there are notifications if an exam, activity, or task is posted, but there's none on that requirement. So, I informed my classmates that we still have a requirement to pass. All of us did not expect it because we were all done with the exam and activities already, and the term is close to its end. We planned on what to do and thankfully, we were able to submit our work minutes before its deadline. Maybe you've been wondering why we didn't know or our teacher did not inform us about it. When the lockdown happened, our teachers at the campus were terminated and we had to connect with the teachers from the main campus in Manila, and students from all branches of AMA had to raise concerns directly to the head office.

3. In your previous position, what task did you find most challenging and why? What task did you enjoy most and why?

I don't have any work before, nor a position. But I think the most challenging as a student for me is the lack of resources. Like when there are still face-to-face classes, I did not come from a wealthy family, and it is hard to manage a 1,000 pesos school and personal allowance for a week. And on the online classes set-up, in our home, the internet connection is unstable. The task that I enjoyed the most as a student was when we made a small advertisement for one place here in Bacolod. We got to practice how to do advertisement and enjoy at the place at the same time.

4. How would your previous managers/coworkers describe you?

My classmates before described me as strict and sometimes a perfectionist. Maybe because when we're doing projects and there are things that are not aligned with the criteria, I point it out and we sometimes have to change and think again of new ideas. Also, strict because I look serious when we have tasks or projects to work on as a group. When I have the energy to do things, I make sure that I use them wisely. Like, when I was thinking and they just kept on talking or joking about how our work is supposed to be or they're disturbing me in my work, I get irritated and tell them to shut up.

5. What personal or professional accomplishments are you most proud of?

Personal or Professional accomplishments I am most proud of, for now, is I graduated as a Cum Laude. I also graduated with honors when I was in elementary and high school, but graduating as a Cum Laude is different especially since there are struggles both in school and personal aspects. When I was in elementary and high school, it was more of a happy experience because of friends and it was not as hard as in college. And another one is to be able to pass the interview and now have trained here at Pathcutters. My sister's workmate is even amazed that I passed the interview because people said that it is really hard to pass. My sister knows people who have applied here but didn't even pass the test.
