

1.If anything was possible, what would your dream job be, and why?

If anything was possible, I would have dreamt of being a flight attendant. Why? Because they travel to different places, they are doing their job in leisure. I know it is very tiring to be up in the air for a couple of hours, however, it is rewarding once you see the destination you will be landing at. They are always doing their best to look great, to have a pleasing personality and they always smile. They do their best to help out those passengers having problems during the flight. They always look good and do good. If you are a flight attendant, you can go to places you've never been and you have a great chance to travel around the world. You can see beautiful places and get the chance to meet different people. It could have been a dream come true if I had got to visit other places outside the country.

2. Have you ever experienced a stressful situation in your past workplace (college if fresh graduate), what was it and how did you overcome it?

The most stressful situation I have experienced in my past workplace is when my boss gets mad because the items, we got from the supplier are not right. What happened is, I made a purchase order in one of our suppliers within the city, since we don't have available stocks for the customer, which happened to be by our boss' friend. I handed in the purchase order form to one of the staff, hence I am only new to the job. I had my lunch and they asked one of our messengers to get the item from the supplier, turns out he got the wrong purchase order form. When the messenger got back with the wrong items, our boss had a tantrum, yelling and blaming everyone. We overcame it by calling the supplier right away to inform them of what happened, and we sent a messenger to get the items fast since our customer is waiting for them.

3. In your previous position, what task did you find most challenging and why? What task did you enjoy most and why?

The most challenging task for me as a purchaser is to fill in a 20-footer container from Manila to Bacolod. It is a hard task because you need to consider everything, from sending the purchase order form to the suppliers, asking them to confirm the delivery of items in a specific timeline, and making sure that they are capable of doing it. Then, I need to create a schedule with the shipping line if they still have an available container to open on a given date. I need to make sure that I will meet the maximum weight the container can carry, and also make sure that the space of the container is properly filled. It is tiring to call all the suppliers on the day of the delivery to make sure they can send all the items purchased. The task that I enjoy is asking for a price quotation. I will just input in the excel file all the items we are going to purchase and then send them to the supplier, if need be, I will be calling them for updates and asking for the price list. While listing the items, I am learning different items as well, especially those that we are using inside the house.

4. How would your previous managers/coworkers describe you?

My previous coworkers describe me as a nice and patient person because they don't have any problem talking to me and asking for help. Everyone, yes including our maintenance personnel can talk to me, they can approach me easily, whenever they want to ask something or request the items or products they needed in their area. They haven't seen me become angry because they haven't done their work well. They also describe me as an efficient person, because I am well organized and productive. I make sure to finish all the work that needs to be done, especially the purchase order forms that need to be submitted so that we can have them scheduled for delivery. My boss, who is the president of the company, considers me a reliable person. He can entrust me with the work that involves land titles and bank transactions even if I am new in the company.

5. What personal or professional accomplishments are you most proud of?

For personal accomplishment, I would say that I am proud of having and knowing a lot of people because they taught me a lot of things, I learned a lot from each one of them, may it be the way our life goes or how things work out which includes work. I have learned how to deal with different kinds of people. For professional accomplishment, I am proud of being recognized because of what I have done for the company. By doing what is right, when it comes to work, by doing my best not just for myself but also for my teammates. It is also an accomplishment for me to try something new, like teaching, I may not be in that field, but I was enjoying what I am doing. For me being accomplished means you've done something that you've never tried doing and you've done it with flying colors.
