

1.If anything was possible, what would your dream job be, and why?

If anything would be possible, my dream job would be a police officer or a public servant, for that reason, in the past few months before applying here in Patchcutters, I was searching for a possible examination for a public servant like the Armed Forces of the Philippines Service Aptitude Test and the Fire Officer Exam. I think all exams can only be taken in the upper regions like region 1 and region 3, there are no available exams here in region 6, in that case, I don't think I can take the exams for the reason, my parents would not allow me to go far since I'm an only child and for now I would like to be practical and think about the finances. I think that dream arose when I was a child while I was watching the Transporter movie of Jason Statham with my father. The dream of having firing encounters and the excitement is killing me. But that would only include the training with firearms, not in real-life situations. Maybe my dream job would be a dream for now.

2. Have you ever experienced a stressful situation in your past workplace (college if fresh graduate), what was it and how did you overcome it?

In the past few years, I was an online tutor for an online platform wherein we answer all queries from our students, and help them with their assignments and other tasks. The platform is quite student-friendly rather than tutor-friendly, there's this situation when I answered or helped the student with her assignment for almost two hours yet the student still rated me unhelpful even if my answer is correct. The platform had this rating tracker wherein every time a student rates you the rating will change automatically and if you had a low rating for quite some time, your account will be down or deactivated. The most disappointing part for me is even though I emailed their account, they only told me that the rating would still depend on the student, and in accordance with that email, I received a warning from the platform for violating some rules which I did not even violate. That's the most stressful experience I've had so far.

3. In your previous position, what task did you find most challenging and why? What task did you enjoy most and why?

In the previous position, tasks or questions by students with regards to the financial statement are tasks I find the most challenging. May it be the Statement of Comprehensive Income, Statement of Financial Position, Statement of Changes in Equity, Partnership's Equity and Corporation Stocks, for it may take quite some time and there are times that the time given would not be enough for the task, and the student would go to the next tutor and all your efforts will be wasted. Then you will have to move on and go to another task. Meanwhile, the questions or tasks with regards to Financial Ratios such as Liquidity Ratios, Productivity Ratios, Leverage Ratios, Efficiency Ratios, and Market Value Ratios are tasks that I find the most interesting. For this reason, I am fond of analyzing and getting insights about a certain company by using the different market and financial ratios. By solving financial ratios, you can get an idea of how well a company is, and how they manage their finances and assets.

4. How would your previous managers/coworkers describe you?

The word that goes into their mind when you say Ching is, always in a hurry. Even people around me are wondering why I am always in a hurry, may it be in the laundry shop, the market or stores near us, or even my cousins. It may be because I have lots on my plates, not only because I'm an only child and most of the household chores are done by me, all those unwashed dishes, piling and folding clothes, and other things. We also have an eatery or a small store where I prefer me or my parents to buy our raw materials. I want all things to be done by me or at least be managed by my parents. People might say that you might be spoiled for some reason but I believe I am not, I'm used to juggling things without compromising the others but in a little bit of a hurry.

5. What personal or professional accomplishments are you most proud of?

The proudest accomplishment I've had so far is the Exemplary Service Award given to me by Carlos Hilado Memorial State University – Fortune Towne when I graduated last month. That award is not only for me but for those who helped me while I was still an organization representative in the Student Government. Being a student leader for four consecutive years is not easy, juggling and handling multiple projects, academic outputs, and extracurricular activities while doing Student Government work is tiring yet meaningful. Having such an award is an honor for me and for the rest of my co-student leaders and we really appreciated it when they recognized our service as student leaders. And of course, the recent accomplishment I am most proud of is when I finished a degree last month. Those four years were all academics, extracurriculars, outputs, submissions, deadlines, intramurals, exams, registrars, dean's office, guidance and now it turns to a diploma.
