

1.If anything was possible, what would your dream job be, and why?

As a graduate of Hospitality Management, one of my goals is to become a Hotel Manager. A job that corresponds to my own personality that others come first before my own self and for me, it is a sense of satisfaction. Through this kind of ideology, I took a course that would amplify my own skills, showcase them, and share them with everyone. A dream job that is too far to reach, but I always know that there are different paths for us to accomplish our own goals.

2. Have you ever experienced a stressful situation in your past workplace (college if fresh graduate), what was it and how did you overcome it?

One of the stressful situations that I experienced during my college days was having a group activity. My groupmates often depend on me, such as leaving most of the work or tasks to me, not cooperating, doesn't communicate every time we had a scheduled meet-up, and won't do their own presentation. It was challenging, but I still did all the work since it will also affect my score. To overcome this, what I did was, I informed our teacher immediately because he was the only one who can help me deal with the stress regarding the situation that time and he is knowledgeable on how it should be handled without causing negative effects to both parties.

3. In your previous position, what task did you find most challenging and why? What task did you enjoy most and why?

As a student assistant, the most challenging task I received was creating Petty Cash Replenishment because money and receipts are involved. If we lose one receipt, it could affect the office budget and have our office heads pay for that. And the task that I enjoyed was attending cooking classes because I get to taste variety of foods which was cooked by the students.

4. How would your previous managers/coworkers describe you?

My previous office head at LifeSkills often describes me as a hardworking person and a trustworthy one.

5. What personal or professional accomplishments are you most proud of?

Receiving a diploma is one of my personal accomplishments that I will always be proud of. Not everyone has the opportunity, so when I had the chance, I immediately grab it, that is why I was able to graduate and have my diploma.
