

1.If anything was possible, what would your dream job be, and why?

My dream job is to become a doctor. It was a dream that I never get to reach since I came from a poor family. I am also the eldest so I can't afford eight years or more just to study, instead I pursued a degree that only requires four years to study. My mother was a nurse so I was very interested in being in the medical field ever since I was young. I am very passionate about taking care of my family members whenever they are sick. At a very young age, I am knowledgeable of different kinds of diseases and how to treat some of them. My mom entrusted me with getting her blood pressure and I am very happy every time I do it because it makes me feel that I am in the medical field. If anything is truly possible, I would pursue medicine to learn a lot about the human body and how to take care of it.

2. Have you ever experienced a stressful situation in your past workplace (college if fresh graduate), what was it and how did you overcome it?

The stressful situation that I faced when I was in college was during thesis. We were six people in a thesis group. Our thesis is about an electronic census application that can be used in our country. It is an app that can be downloaded into mobile phones and to be fill-out personally. We created this thesis during the pandemic time. It was hard to gather the group during the pandemic, let alone conduct an online meeting because other members have trouble in accessing a good internet connection in their homes. Other than it was troublesome to gather the members, it was also hard to get them their assigned tasks. Most of the time it was just the three of us struggling to finish the paper and the others can't be found. Though it was hard, I pushed through in finishing all the documents, individually messaging every member to make sure they at least do something to help the group. In the end, the thesis paper that we sent has little to nothing mistakes and we submitted on time. All of us in the group have graduated together.

3. In your previous position, what task did you find most challenging and why? What task did you enjoy most and why?

I was an OJT at Ubiquity Global services around 2017 for six months. At first, the job assigned to me was challenging for me since I was a Computer Engineering Technology student at that time and I was applying for the IT position. But since there were no slots left, I was assigned to the HR department. It was all new to me, to speak in front of a lot of people and to tell them about the application process, to inform them of their statuses, whether they passed or they failed. I even did the trafficking since I was also assigned as a front liner. In the end, it was the same thing that made me enjoy my OJT the most. It made me practice my communication skills and organizational skills. It brought me out of my shell and helped me handle different kinds of people with different kinds of situations.

4. How would your previous managers/coworkers describe you?

My previous supervisors during OJT would describe me as reliable and trustworthy. I show up to work every day and being my best self as I face everyday task that they assign to me. They let me and my co-trainees handle the applicants without their supervision. I was assigned to train and supervise new OJTs and teach them the workflow of the recruitment process during the first few weeks of their training. I was the one facing the applicants in guiding and instructing them through their technical exams, adding their scores and identification details in to the database, informing them of their statuses, and assigning them their time slots for interviews as given to me by the HR team. I am really honored of my supervisors for trusting me with a lot of information and tasks. They trust me enough that I won't leak the applicant's information anywhere and be honest and objective with their scores and statuses through-out the application process.

5. What personal or professional accomplishments are you most proud of?

I am a proud member of CFC – Youth for Christ. I was a member of the community for almost 6 years until I transitioned to Singles for Christ. I was a household head for a year and then promoted to become the Chapter Youth Head for 4 years. Youth for Christ helped me boost my confidence as I was assigned to different areas to mission and to become a speaker multiple times during college. I was able to juggle my college life and my responsibilities as a youth leader. I was also a member of a crew within the community that represented Western Visayas internationally through dancing. The community led me to different areas of the Philippines to witness people enjoying and living the best catholic life. I am most proud and call this as an accomplishment because of the hurdles and different kinds of people that I get to meet every day, I remained on my faith.
