

1.If anything was possible, what would your dream job be, and why?

If anything was possible, my dream job would be to work on a farm. To be with nature is an environment I find to be very calming and relaxing. There is so much to do, to learn and to experience with a job like that. Aside from the beautiful view and a breath of fresh air, everything is made available in the palm of your hand. We often take for granted the very simple things in life that keep us sane and It's not every day you get to experience nature but with a job like that, it certainly feels like a dream. I can tend to the needs of the animals and of nature all while learning more about the world and about myself. Although it's not the easiest job in the world as it carries loads of responsibilities, I find it to be very rewarding to be of service to nature.

2. Have you ever experienced a stressful situation in your past workplace (college if fresh graduate), what was it and how did you overcome it?

Yes. Although I don't particularly enjoy stressful situations, I think I'm good at handling pressure. For instance, when I was Mayor at university, there were many times when I had to juggle many assignments and projects all at once. What I would do is I would pause, plan and prioritize. I would identify which task is much heavier or which due date is set at a much earlier date and from thereon prioritize which assignment I need to tend to first. By doing that, I am then able to understand the steps I am going to take and the ones I need to take. Throughout my college journey, I realized that the more of these circumstances I've had to deal with, the better I became at overcoming them as I now know how to work around a situation, I am either about to tackle or something I am currently having difficulty with.

3. In your previous position, what task did you find most challenging and why? What task did you enjoy most and why?

The most challenging task I encountered was the making of my thesis. I found it particularly challenging because it was a title I haven't experienced or heard of before. Although it was something I haven't done before I really took the time to learn and understand how to do it in order to better navigate the ins and outs of my thesis making as well as to deliver a good output. Eventually, I was able to figure it out and sought guidance whenever necessary in order to ensure I am on the right track and I am doing the tasks correctly. The task I most enjoyed was tasks that allow us to think creatively and freely. Tasks that allowed me to work around them at my own pace and time and also deliver them in my own way or style. I find them enjoyable because it's something that allows you to express your individuality.

4. How would your previous managers/coworkers describe you?

My professors and peers would describe me as someone who is quiet, calm, and hardworking which is something I agree with. I am more of a quiet person but I make sure to listen attentively to the needs of others and respond accordingly. I like to think before I speak where I prefer to be in a situation where I can think properly and my mind isn't clouded with other things. However, if I am put in a situation I am not used to, I can also adapt and communicate whenever necessary. I also like to engage in conversation every once in a while. I also like a calm environment for it makes my mind at ease and gives me space to think and enjoy my own company. I am hardworking because when I do something I really take the time and effort to learn and understand it in order to produce good outcomes.

5. What personal or professional accomplishments are you most proud of?

A personal achievement I am most proud of would be graduating from university within 4-year time despite the many challenges brought about by the new curriculum, the pandemic, and the new learning system. Although it was difficult to navigate at first, I made sure to understand what I am dealing with and work from there. I adapted to the situation I was handed, worked my way around it as it was an uncertain time where plans and directions kept changing. There may be moments of discouragement but I was able to push through it. It was exhausting but rewarding all at once and I feel very grateful for the experience. A professional accomplishment I am proud of would be taking on the assessments in hopes of being able to experience the Trial period and hopefully, in time, be a part of Pathcutters.
