

1.If anything was possible, what would your dream job be, and why?

If anything were possible in this world, I would like to have a job where I am not doing anything but still earning. I think I've been thinking of this one for a long time now. I always wonder how amazing it would be if money just came in even without working. I'll just laze around the house doing things that I love or just do random stuff, but I'll still have plenty of money in my bank account. I know this may sound crazy, but considering the personality I have, where I like to stay in the house all day and not meet a lot of people, having this job will be a dream come true. Actually, I have thought of ways to achieve this. I always thought that I could invest my money in different companies so that I could earn even without working. However, I was also thinking, will it be sustainable? Could this method be effective for a long time? There are so many things to consider, but right now, all I want to do is try my best and grab every opportunity I have. Maybe someday it will lead me to that dream I longed for.

2. Have you ever experienced a stressful situation in your past workplace (college if fresh graduate), what was it and how did you overcome it?

Yes, I experienced it many times. I mostly experienced it during my university or college time. These were the times when a lot of projects or schoolwork were piled up. A lot of tasks were given with all also having the same deadline. It was most prominent during the online class. During the online class, the teacher would give a lecture once a week, then the rest of the time would be spent on different tasks. Maybe because the teachers believed that we had plenty of time for the week, some would give like two or three tasks at the same time. Then, partnered with the other teachers' tasks, and deadline would be on Thursday before midnight. It was stressful for me because sometimes I did not know where to start first or how to start. I also admit that I was a bit of a procrastinator, so another problem. However, I learned how to overcome it by doing it one step at a time. Also, I learned from this experience, and try to manage my time more effectively. Lastly, I tried to be more productive and lessen my procrastination.

3. In your previous position, what task did you find most challenging and why? What task did you enjoy most and why?

Based on my past experiences, the tasks that I find the most challenging are those tasks that involve reporting or presentation. The reason for this could be that I am not the type of person who likes to talk, I also don't want to get the attention of many people. However, if given tasks where presentation is involved, I also try my best to deliver the best presentation I can. Not only because I don't want to fail, but I don't want also to drag my other members down, since most tasks with presentations are group work. On the other hand, the tasks that I like the most are those involving data entry. I think I noticed in myself that I enjoy doing data entry or encoding. Most of the time, I find these kinds of tasks to be amusing and enjoyable.

4. How would your previous managers/coworkers describe you?

I think during my OJT time, my supervisor would tell me that I work fast. It was maybe because she observed that if she would give tasks for that day. My co-intern and I would finish it after hours. Other people in the company would also describe me and my co-intern to be creative because of the outputs that we have provided. Other than this, one of my friends would also tell me that I looked calm even when I was under pressure. I remembered during our 1st-year college when she said that she would like to partner with me during the quiz bee in our school because she believed that I was calm, and it would help her to not panic during the contest. I think another description would be that I am a fast learner, or that I am a positive person, and last is that they think that I am an introverted person which is kind of true.

5. What personal or professional accomplishments are you most proud of?

First and foremost, I am most proud that I recently graduated from college. I was proud and thankful that I managed to survive and complete the course. Even though I graduated without any honors, I am still proud of myself because I finished the four years. Another recent accomplishment is when I passed the civil service examination. It was fulfilling because, after months of reviewing for the exam, I managed to pass. I am proud and thankful that I am part of almost 16% who passed the civil service exam. Another accomplishment I am also proud of is when I passed the NCIII Bookkeeping certification. It was during my senior high when I took the tests. I was also proud when I became a scholar of SM because I managed to help my parents so that they do not have to stress over the expenses of my studies. The last accomplishment that I am most proud of is when I became a part-time worker because I also got to help with the expenses in our house.
