

1.If anything was possible, what would your dream job be, and why?

The degree I have right now is opposite from what my dream job is. My dream job is to become a veterinarian, vet med is my dream course as well. Since I had my first dog, I enjoyed the feeling of having a companion. I wanted to become a veterinarian because I want to help dogs, cats, and any kind of animal. I want to help the owners as well. Some of them are not capable of taking their pets to a hospital because of their lack of finance. I want to be the one to help them regardless of if they can be able to pay or not. I've experienced losing a dog because of the same situation. I don't want it to happen to other owners as well. If I had the chance to go back to the days when I decided on what course I would take, I would probably take Veterinarian Medicine. I will trust myself and think that I can do it. Anything is possible as long as we are learning and opening our minds to a lot of possibilities and accepting whatever may happen and learn from it.

2. Have you ever experienced a stressful situation in your past workplace (college if fresh graduate), what was it and how did you overcome it?

There are a lot of days I felt stressed. However, there was a time during my college years when I was very stressed because I had a lot of things on my plate. I am a student-athlete and managing my time was very difficult for me. I had a lot of tasks to pass on time, but I must attend practices as well because we have an upcoming performance. It was so stressful that I didn't know what to prioritize because both are important. What I did was manage my time, I had to work on some tasks while doing the practice. Also, I ask permission to leave practice early so that I can work on my tasks and finish them and be able to focus on the practice the next day. Time management is crucial to our lives, we have to know what we should prioritize to avoid stressing ourselves as well as delaying our life routines. Knowing how to manage my time would help me as well being in this industry, I wouldn't be able to stress myself as well as to cause a delay to my client's business.

3. In your previous position, what task did you find most challenging and why? What task did you enjoy most and why?

Aside from being a fresh graduate. I had a part-time job while studying, I was an Online English Tutor to Japanese. Our job was to teach them English as their second language, lessons are provided by the company. However, not being able to speak Japanese and talking to those students that can't really speak English was challenging. I had to understand every word they said even if the grammar is not right, I must understand them and try to help them construct sentences well and explain to them what the words and sentences are all about. I enjoyed being an online English tutor, I learned how to match my energy with different types of people. I learned how to handle them professionally. If we love what we're doing no matter how stressful it is, we will enjoy it. We must choose a job worth doing, a job where we will find our peace and enjoy every day at work.

4. How would your previous managers/coworkers describe you?

I have a previous job as an Online English Tutor, more like we're a freelancer since we don't have an employee-employer contract, so I don't know any colleagues there so probably I'll tell what my students usually describe me. They would say that I am kind and cheerful. They would also say that I am patient and try my best to explain to them about our lessons. They know how hard it is to teach foreigners, especially with the language barrier. For me it is hard because there are students who can't really speak English at all, what I did was to be patient and listen to them. I try to use available resources to help them understand and we can go through with our lesson. During my college years, my friends and classmates would also describe me as cheerful. They say that I was so quiet the first time they met me, but as time went by, I became so loud and funny. I may say this is true because I am an ambivert, my energy depends on who I am with. People may describe us differently; it is because of how we present ourselves to them. I am glad to know that people surround me appreciate and have a positive description of me. Whomever people we face along the way, we just must be kind since we don't know what those people are going through.

5. What personal or professional accomplishments are you most proud of?

I am a fresh graduate, and for now, I can say that I am proud that I got a degree and was able to graduate on time. I was a working – student – athlete. It was hard for me to manage my time but eventually, I was able to survive. I felt exhausted all throughout my college years aside from being in a pandemic situation because we didn't have training at that time. But the rest of the days that we had training it was so exhausting because we had to train early in the morning and have classes after or we have classes during the day and later afternoon until evening we would have training. Also, if I can get home early, I would do my job as an ESL Tutor. I was doing all of this because I sustain myself, I don't ask for allowance from my family. It's not that they don't give me I just don't want to bother them because I want them to spend their money on themselves and their own family. I am proud and I am lucky enough I was able to survive that phase of my life. A lesson that I learned is that if we want to and if we work hard for the things, we want to achieve nothing is impossible.
