

1.If anything was possible, what would your dream job be, and why?

Paris is always a good idea. This quote is from Audrey Hepburn, one of my favorite actresses. If anything was possible, I would be a fashion designer living in Europe. Ever since I was a kid, I always dreamed about living in Paris and wearing all the fancy outfits while eating a croissant in a Parisian café. Barbie and watching fashion-related movies have a huge influence on this dream job. I romanticize the life of living in Paris. I have already imagined what outfits I would be wearing on visiting the famous Eiffel Tower and other remarkable places in Europe.

Up until now, I always dreamed of being a fashion designer in Christian Dior. I have always been in love with their craft and dedication to producing an eye-catching collection. I believe nothing is impossible for a dreaming heart. I have faith that someday I will come to visit this place.

2. Have you ever experienced a stressful situation in your past workplace (college if fresh graduate), what was it and how did you overcome it?

The internship is set to prepare college students for the professional world. It gives a glimpse of how the job is in line with your degree. This is where all the learnings will be applied in the industrial set up.

In the time of my internship during my college days, admission of enrollees for the incoming academic year was one of the most stressful situations I had. During the first week, I must give out admission tests for incoming freshmen college students and assess the test result if they are qualified to be admitted to the university. In my second week of internship, I had to schedule and give an interview with incoming and exiting senior high school students. The interview was held online via Zoom. My third and fourth week, this is the most stressful part of my internship with the university. Together with my co-interns, we had to help facilitate the enrollment process from kindergarten to grade 10 students. The process alone was stressful since the school did not have a well-ordered system. This causes confusion for parents, students, and us interns.

Despite this, I manage to handle the stress brought on by the situation. I consulted our supervisor with regard to the enrollment process on how to make it simple and understandable to everyone. The supervisor coordinated with the teachers who are also assigned to the enrollment and came to a compromise for everybody's benefit. Thus, this whole situation made me realize that complaining has no better effect. Rather, we all must work together to meet in the middle for everybody's sake.

3. In your previous position, what task did you find most challenging and why? What task did you enjoy most and why?

The task I find most challenging in my internship is giving out test admission. I have a fear of speaking in front of many people. I find it challenging since I stutter whenever I speak, especially when I am nervous. My voice tends to crack, and my nerves are shaking. Also, whenever I am nervous, I experience a mental block out.

On the other hand, the task I enjoyed the most during my internship with PHRMO is filling out application details and filing them. I find it interesting since my supervisor helps us assess whether the applicant is suitable for the position they are applying for. This gives me an insight on how to assess and look for the best applicants for certain positions. Also, just to say its one of the easy jobs during my internship.

4. How would your previous managers/coworkers describe you?

The feedback I received from my internship is that I am a fast learner, adaptive, and creative. Which I believe is true. I consider that I can easily be taught and can adapt to fast pacing environment. Also, I can be easily trusted when it comes to arts and craft or creating graphic design.

My co-interns would often describe me as a person who cannot say no. Which I think is a negative trait since if a given task is beyond my means I kept on saying yes. However, I set myself to overcome this negative habit. Since I think that if I continue this, this may cross my boundaries among my future peers, and would abuse that.

5. What personal or professional accomplishments are you most proud of?

Education is never an easy route. It will always be a hard path to pass through, especially if you are not privileged enough to acquire one.

One of the personal accomplishments that I am proud of is graduating from college. Growing up, I have always been enrolled in a private school. Financially speaking, I lived a comfortable life then. My parents always taught me that education is the only riches in the world they can give to me and that I should treasure it. However, during my second year of college, a global pandemic hit. Not only did it affect the quality of education I would receive but it affects us financially. My parents used to own a catering business and because of the pandemic, it shut down.

This leaves us in a big debt crisis and hanging on the loose thread if I should stop college and find a job to help my parents. However, one of my aunts knew about my plan and is against it. Instead, she lends her hand to help me financially and graduate college.

Thus, when I look back on the obstacle, I have been through a lot just to survive and graduate college makes me grateful for the privilege I received.
