

1. If anything was possible, what would your dream job be, and why?

If anything were possible, my dream job would be a professional nurse. I have always dreamt of working in a hospital and serving patients wholeheartedly. I want to help them regain their strength and help them to recover from their sickness or injury because I know how hard it is to be in that kind of situation. I want to provide the medical care and service that they need as much as possible. I also want to work in an operation room, assisting a doctor and helping them to achieve a successful operation. A nurse's job requires a lot of work, effort and sacrifices but I know for a fact that it is fulfilling. Your efforts and sacrifices will be worth it because you help patients to feel better and healthy again. Working in a caring and compassionate nature and having skills in promoting and maintaining health is a dream job for me.

2. Have you ever experienced a stressful situation in your past workplace (college if fresh graduate), what was it and how did you overcome it?

Yes, I have experienced a stressful situation in my past workplace. They gave me multiple tasks because there was a manpower shortage. It was stressful because I needed to learn a lot of tasks immediately and I needed to transfer from one setup to another. I was a cashier, data encoder, merchandiser, inventory staff, and lotto teller. It was a stressful environment, but I overcame it because I was determined to learn. I observed very well and disciplined myself to be more flexible. I was open to new learnings and collaborated with my supervisor from time to time. I also made sure to have good health and I have achieved this by sleeping early, eating healthy foods, and taking my vitamins every day. Being healthy helped me perform multiple tasks actively. It may be stressful, but I was grateful because I have work and the means to earn during that time.

3. In your previous position, what task did you find most challenging and why? What task did you enjoy most and why?

Being a cashier and assisting different kinds of customers was the most challenging part for me because it requires great patience and understanding. Other customers were difficult to handle, especially when they were mad and impatient. They tend to shout at me and disrespect me. Other customers would say something bad about me and it was challenging because I should remain calm, composed myself and think of a better idea on how to address their concerns that could make them calm also. It was still our goal to meet their needs and assist them properly. The task that I enjoyed the most was encoding data and updating the prices of the products or grocery items because it was the easiest task for me, and I enjoyed scanning/reading the receipt. I also have the time to sit after standing for a long time. I have also the time to be alone and not having to assist a customer for a little while.

4. How would your previous managers/coworkers describe you?

I was once told by my previous supervisor that I am trustworthy since I can do all the tasks honestly and with a sense of accountability. She would always ask me to keep an eye on my coworkers and the office when she was not around. She told me that I was a great help because she can depend on me. On the other hand, my former colleagues would describe me as someone who is humble and considerate. They would say that I tend to think of others and understand that I may not have the best ideas when it comes to making decisions, so I collaborated with them often. I considered their opinions or suggestions; ideas about something. I acknowledged my mistakes and would ask others for help when I needed to. Moreover, I was open to feedback and advice not only from my former supervisor but also from my former colleagues.

5. What personal or professional accomplishments are you most proud of?

I am proud to be promoted as an acting supervisor during my previous work. I didn't expect that my boss would see me as someone who could fit enough for that position. I am proud that I was able to manage well on my work even though I was also a student during that time. It was such an honor that I have accomplished that achievement despite being a working student. I am also proud that I got to balance my work and school activities. My boss sees me as someone who is reliable and so he gave me that opportunity to have that great responsibility to assist our supervisor. Being positive and determined helped me to accomplish that achievement. I made my best efforts to perform those responsibilities that were given to me with utmost sincerity and honesty, and that was something that I was proud of as well.
