

1.If anything was possible, what would your dream job be, and why?

If anything was possible, I would pursue my dream job to become a professional teacher. Ever since I was a child, I always looked up to all the teachers out there and was so proud of them. Way back in grade school, I started to imagine myself becoming one of them. I want to be a teacher because I want to be a channel for my students to achieve their dreams in life. I want to be their friend also whom they can share their insights and struggles in life. I will guide my students to become a better person through self-discipline and control over things. Additionally, not only to impart my knowledge about our lessons but also inspire and motivate them by sharing my experiences in life which made me stronger and dare to continue living as well as the lessons that I learned that help me to become who I am today.

2. Have you ever experienced a stressful situation in your past workplace (college if fresh graduate), what was it and how did you overcome it?

During my college days, I experienced a lot of stressful situations that I can say helped me to become stronger, wiser, and independent. During my first year in college, I was in the Accountancy program. I met my classmates whom I became friends with. Unfortunately, in later years, I didn't make it so automatically I was shifted to the Management Accounting program. During these years, I felt so alone, and I didn't feel the environment where I was. I encountered new faces and different behaviors or attitudes. Every day, going to school is a burden for me and it feels like I am doing it for the sake of just being in school. Later, the result of my performance was not good, and I didn't like it. I realized that I was still hooked to my old friends which hindered me from appreciating the people who wanted me to be their friends. Subsequently, I let my guard off and permitted those people to be part of my life and remaining college years. We share a lot of good and bad memories, and I can say that those remaining years are worth remembering.

3. In your previous position, what task did you find most challenging and why? What task did you enjoy most and why?

During my On-the-Job Training, I was assigned to a different task that I must complete within the given time frame. Some tasks are interesting to do as well as challenging. For me, the task that I find the most challenging is encoding the transactions of their client's business daily operations in QuickBooks. I find it hard since it is my first time using the software and I don't have enough background and knowledge on using it. I don't even know how it works or what the different functions of the software are. However, cross-checking the information is the task I enjoyed doing the most. I am having fun and very confident in doing it. It requires attention to detail to make sure that all information is accurate from one another and patience to complete the task.

4. How would your previous managers/coworkers describe you?

Based on my performance and how I interact with my manager and coworkers during my On-the-Job Training in the company, I think they will describe me as a person who does not hesitate to accept tasks even if I haven't finished the first task that they assigned to me. Someone willing to be trained and teachable. Sometimes, an individual discovers things on her own. Furthermore, they will remember me for being a silent person when working, and the other way around when outside the workplace. I make jokes around to lighten up the mood of everyone. Additionally, my coworkers will describe me as someone who doesn't don't give up no matter how difficult the task is for me. I am resourceful and creative in my own way that helps me a lot to overcome the difficulties working in my tasks.

5. What personal or professional accomplishments are you most proud of?

I have so many things and accomplishments in life that I'm proud of. One of those is finishing my studies despite the hardships that I encountered along the way. I was able to manage my time and did my responsibility as a student, an auntie, and a daughter. Life was so hard for me back then because I was the one who took care of my four nephews and my sick mother and I'm glad about it. Another thing is that we don't have electricity, so it's a struggle for all of us when studying our lessons and doing homework at night. Despite all the struggles, I was able to comply with the requirements in all my subjects and graduated with my degree. It's just sad to think that my mother was not able to witness one of the special days in my life, but I am sure that she's also proud of me.
