

1. If anything was possible, what would your dream job be, and why?

When I was in my junior high school years, I dreamed of being a journalist. I like to write stuff, take photographs with different subjects, and edit and proofread works. So, if I were asked what my dream job would be, it would be a journalist. I want to become a journalist because it gives me the drive and motivation to be the voice of voiceless people. It was my dream to speak out for justice and peace that the people deserve. When I have a pen and camera in my hands, I tend to write what the people need to know and click on the situations that the people need to see. It is not easy to become a journalist, but having this job is somewhat fulfilling if you are on the side that wants to help people know what is happening around the world and if you can cater to the needs of the unfortunate and the oppressed.

2. Have you ever experienced a stressful situation in your past workplace (college if fresh graduate), what was it and how did you overcome it?

Being a College of Education student is challenging. You must deal with different things at the same time. The most stressful experience I have ever had during my college years was when I had to report a topic that was all about a Decree and it consisted of a lot of articles and sections. The stressful thing is that I only have three days before reporting. I was stressed with it because I think I didn't have much time to memorize all the articles and their sections. So, the first thing I did was to get the gist of that Decree and know what it is about. Then, I summarize all the sections and that is the time I memorize them. I just organize what I must do, and I must memorize, so that I will be in place at the time of the reporting. I know I am pressured by the shortage of time in preparation. But I must set my mind that I will not finish anything if I only focus on the negative side.

3. In your previous position, what task did you find most challenging and why? What task did you enjoy most and why?

The task that I found most challenging during my college years was when we made our thesis. During those times, we must come up with our research regarding Language and we must finish it before we can enroll in our next semester. In making our thesis, there are a lot of difficulties. One of them is when two of our members have a misunderstanding. It was the most challenging because we were already near the deadline, but we still had a lot of revisions at the same time the two of them kept arguing. But in the end, we came up with a solution to our shortcomings with our thesis and we passed it on time.

While the task I enjoy the most is during my internship. I enjoy dealing with students as they are fun and caring. My students during my internship helped me to become sane during my hardest times. They help me grow and at the same time enjoy my internship.

4. How would your past colleagues or managers describe your work ethic?

If I were to describe by my classmates during my college years, it would be kind, respectful, organized, and always on time when it comes to deadlines. During my college years, I always set my mind to finishing all my tasks before the deadline. Also, I see to it that I organize the things that I will do. I created a checklist of what I will do in the whole week so that there will be no lapses. When it comes to group work, I also divide the tasks among our groupmates evenly. I also remind them of their task and if they want my help they can tell me. I was not talkative when I was in college, but I am approachable and kind. When I can be of help to any of my classmates, I help them genuinely, especially during the pandemic years. A lot of us encountered struggles and problems.

5. What personal or professional accomplishments are you most proud of?

The accomplishment I am proud of is when I finished college with flying colors. Those four years were not easy. I had a lot of drawbacks and mishaps. There is also one point that I want to give up. But God gave me a lot of reasons to keep moving forward. There were also times when the schoolwork was never-ending and there was no time to rest. It only made me burn out. Also, when the pandemic hit, everything changed, and it felt like what I had learned during those times was not meaningful enough to stick in my mind. Nevertheless, I did not expect to finish my program as a Cum Laude. I was more than happy with what I achieved even though I had a lot of struggles and imperfections as a pre-service teacher. This is the greatest accomplishment that I am proud of, and I will forever cherish it in my lifetime.
