

1. If anything was possible, what would your dream job be, and why?

If anything was possible, my dream job would be to become a Scientist, Doctor and a health advocate at the same time. I will combine my skills and expertise in creating a cure for cancer. If I could do this and be successful then I would be able to help a lot of people suffering because of this deadly disease. Cancer is known as the second leading cause of death worldwide and it could be avoided if we can find a cure for this. This is one way of helping our community to raise awareness of cancer, what the root cause is and how to prevent it. We can live peacefully together knowing that we have a cure for any kind of cancer.

2. Have you ever experienced a stressful situation in your past workplace (college if fresh graduate), what was it and how did you overcome it?

The stressful situation I experienced in my previous workplace was when I worked as a receptionist at an Aviation company in Dubai. It was my first job, and I was new in the country and not used to speaking in English. Most of our clients are native English and when they call us on the phone, they tend to speak very fast, and it was hard for me to catch up what they were trying to say. I was hesitant to continue working at the time, but my employer was very supportive, and he believed in me. I overcome it by reading English books, watching English movies and conversing in English with my colleagues, family and friends all the time.

3. In your previous position, what task did you find most challenging and why? What task did you enjoy most and why?

In my previous role, I worked as a receptionist at a Nursery. The task that I find most challenging is dealing with angry or upset parents. Sometimes, there are things happening inside the Nursery that we cannot avoid such as accidents, children bumping into each other, or the child has been bitten off by another child. I fully understand the parents' sentiment, but these are the things that are out of our control and unavoidable. The task I enjoy the most is doing all sorts of admin tasks such as data entry, handling phone calls, replying to emails and playing with the kids during my free time. I enjoy doing paperwork, filing and communicating with my colleagues and our clients.

4. How would your past colleagues or managers describe your work ethic?

My past colleagues or Manager would describe my work ethic as being professional, accountable, reliable, dedicated, honest and willing to go above and beyond to complete a task. I was entrusted with petty cash and payment, so honesty is crucial. I am professional in handling any situation regarding dealing with clients and I'm accountable with my actions, behavior and decisions. I am a reliable employee, and my colleagues can depend on me to get the job done and to be consistent with my work.

5. What personal or professional accomplishments are you most proud of?

The professional accomplishment that I am most proud of is to have worked abroad. Why? Simply because being away from your family, stepping out of your comfort zone and cultural shock is no joke. It was a very difficult journey at first but because of my persistence, grit, patience and dedication I was able to survive all of this. I have worked with different people of different Nationalities and learn how to embrace diversity. I learned so much from my colleagues, I have a better understanding of how business works, and I was exposed to different areas of the work environment. I am always grateful for these experiences and at the same time I was able to help my family financially, which changed our lives forever.
