

1. If anything was possible, what would your dream job be, and why?

My dream job is to be a medical doctor. Ever since I was young, I have wanted to be a doctor because I love watching people help sick individuals. I have dreamed of wearing white hospital gowns with a stethoscope around my neck and doing rounding inside the hospitals and checking on patients. I really wanted to help my community in the act of service in giving medical check-ups and free medicines. I am interested in how doctors diagnose those who visit them and have checked their medical conditions, and how they provide correct prescriptions of medicines. I also love how the doctors treat their patients as if they were their family members. I considered doctors were heroes as well because they are saving people's life they extend someone's life by healing or treating their illness.

2. Have you ever experienced a stressful situation in your past workplace (college if fresh graduate), what was it and how did you overcome it?

Yes, I have experienced stressful situations in my past workplace. It was when I couldn't find any profitable leads or products to provide to my client. I overcame it by trying first to talk to my client about the situation I'm currently having, and that I'm having a hard time finding leads or products. Then, after that conversation with my client, he have me take a little break for a while and just go back to work after. During my break, I had my coffee and took a deep breath that helped me to be calm and relaxed. Then I think again about what my strategy would be on how to find profitable leads or products. I reviewed all the training materials that I have from training, and I also checked all my emails from online stores that I subscribed to before. And in that situation, I overcome my stressful experience at work.

3. In your previous position, what task did you find most challenging and why? What task did you enjoy most and why?

In my previous position, the task that I find most challenging is when I'm trying to reach the given quota for a quarter. It was challenging because in every quarter the promotions, sales and discounts were changing. For me to reach the given quota I need to extend a couple of hours every day and use all possible sourcing techniques just to find profitable leads or products. And the task that I enjoyed the most in my previous position was when I do the data entry and purchased all the profitable leads or products that we have found during the entire week. This one specific task is enjoyable because it somehow gives encouragement for me to do my job well especially when I can see that we are having a lot of profitable leads or products to sell on our client's online store. Which means that's the result of this will bring progress to his business.

4. How would your past colleagues or managers describe your work ethic?

My past colleagues and managers would describe my work ethic, being dedicated to work because work comes first before anything else, I am always willing to take new ideas and knowledge especially if there are new troubleshooting guidelines. My work is always my top priority whenever I'm at the office. Time management and attendance, I always go to work on time and make sure to adhere to my schedule of breaks and lunch. Being respectful to everyone in the office always shows good manners and always listens to the superior or colleague's opinions and suggestions. Reliable always not just in performance but also in times when the department needs a person to render extra time or overtime to cover some overflowing calls. And having a teamwork mindset which helps me and the entire team to deliver a good quality performance in which we do share our best practices.

5. What personal or professional accomplishments are you most proud of?

The accomplishment that I am most proud of is when I was working, I was also able to finish my Teacher Certification Program course that I personally financed by using my own money from my salary. It takes a lot of courage to decide if I'm going to pursue it or not because either it will affect my performance at work or I'm just unable to finish the course within a year because it may bring conflict with my work schedule but eventually it turned out to be a success and neither of my work performance nor my study was compromised. I am also proud of my personal growth not just with my job or educational attainment but as an ordinary individual that I am more positive in life and become mature enough to take action on things or situations that I encounter. This is what I can share as my achievements in life. I hope I can have more achievements in the future.
