

1. If anything was possible, what would your dream job be, and why?

- If anything were possible, my dream job would be a hero that has the superpower of unlimited money. Poverty in our country today is very significant, and having this job will help those who are in need. I've encountered many homeless people every day, and I can't stop thinking that if I only had the means to help them, I would. I chose the superpower of unlimited money, as it is the only thing that can provide our basic needs. Without money, we cannot purchase anything in this world. I would also rather keep my identity anonymous, as I believe in every heroic story, there will always be a villain. A villain that can take advantage of what I am doing and make it beneficial for them even though they are not the ones who are in need. Being a hero takes a lot of courage and selflessness to become one, and if it is possible to have this job, I would really take it.

2. Have you ever experienced a stressful situation in your past workplace (college if fresh graduate), what was it and how did you overcome it?

- I experienced many stressful situations during college. One notable situation was when we were doing our thesis paper. My groupmates were not attentive and cooperative even though I kept on messaging them in our group chat. I always ask them for an update regarding the parts that I assigned them and if they understood their parts and if they have any questions, but there is no response every time. This situation stressed me a lot since the deadline is already near, and they are not responsive to the point that I already broke down. I gave them a chance to respond, but still nothing. I don't have a choice but to tell our professor. Our group was called out, and we had a meeting with our professor. We signed an agreement regarding their attentiveness and responsiveness. After that meeting, the problem was already fixed, and they are already responding to me. We also passed our thesis paper on time.

3. In your previous position, what task did you find most challenging and why? What task did you enjoy most and why?

- I think one of the tasks that I find most challenging is handling a rude customer. In a business, a rude customer is unstoppable. Our patience was tested during those times, and that is also the time that we were taught how to handle it professionally. We've encountered a lot of rude customers that have different behaviors, and we also handled it differently with every person. We were calm and professional all the time. The task I enjoyed the most was editing stories to be posted every day on our social media accounts. It makes me think outside of my box and challenges my creativity. Also, over time I've already seen my improvements, and I can say that my manager likes my work if they praise it. Another thing I enjoyed the most is when we are preparing marketing collateral, as this is the time that we can get out of our office and go to different advertising companies to get the collateral.

4. How would your past colleagues or managers describe your work ethic?

- While reading my feedback from our manager. My past manager describes me as punctual, committed, dedicated, and responsible. They also like my willingness to learn and how I did my job with minimal supervision. Being punctual in terms of arriving on time and doing my tasks on time. They noted how committed I am while doing my work and gave a positive outcome in my work. They've seen how passionate I am, especially when I was given a specific task to work on. I've also made sure that I can go beyond their expectations. They also liked how flexible we were during our internship. Since my manager often goes to other places to open a new branch, we are the ones who are left in the office to make sure that we are marketing the business very well. We also did some internal marketing stuff, which is like an extension of our work, and one of our heads is really grateful that they can rely on us during our internship time.

5. What personal or professional accomplishments are you most proud of?

- A personal accomplishment that I am most proud of is graduating college. My college life was like a roller coaster; there were ups and downs where I had an existential crisis. I entered college with a lot of goals and dreams that I thought I could easily achieve, but they didn't work out well. College is daunting for me because there were times that I was satisfied and disappointed with the people around me. However, I am grateful that I have already overcome everything with the support of the people who stayed beside me. Graduating college demonstrated my dedication and perseverance throughout the years. My college life honed me into a more real-world experience. They shaped my skills and made me discover things that I thought I was incapable of. To others, graduating college is just a relief to them, but for me, graduating college is an accomplishment that I am proud of because it made me a person who I can be proud of.
