

1. If anything was possible, what would your dream job be, and why?

Growing up, I have always been fascinated by motorsports, specifically cars and motorcycles. At a very young age, I dreamed of becoming a race car driver or a motorcycle racer. I greatly admired those incredible machines and wanted to learn more about how they are made, how they work, and the knowledge required by the engineers who constantly push themselves to innovate and create the best machines possible.

I also appreciate the dedication and hard work that drivers go through to hone their skills, allowing them to perform at the highest level and become elite athletes in the sport.

2. Have you ever experienced a stressful situation in your past workplace (college if fresh graduate), what was it and how did you overcome it?

One stressful situation I experienced was when we had a much busier day than usual. I became overwhelmed as the tasks kept piling up, and I was worried that I would not be able to finish them before the end of the day.

I overcame the situation by staying composed and focusing on finding solutions rather than dwelling on the problem itself. I organized my tasks based on priority and proactively informed my client about my current workload to set proper expectations that some tasks might be completed later in the day.

This approach helped me work more efficiently, and by the end of the day, I was able to complete all my tasks successfully.

3. In your previous position, what task did you find most challenging and why? What task did you enjoy most and why?

The task I find most challenging is processing rental applications and making phone calls to applicants, employers, and landlords. I feel that I am not yet confident enough when it comes to handling phone conversations and liaising with different people.

What I enjoy most is working in the background, preparing and organizing documents, especially in situations where there are clear guidelines to follow and deadlines to meet. I enjoy doing the “behind-the-scenes” work for clients, helping free up their time so they can focus on more important tasks.

4. How would your past colleagues or managers describe your work ethic?

I think they would describe my work ethic as cooperative and compliant. I always try to keep an open mind at work, and I believe it is especially important when working as part of a team. It helps everyone work together efficiently and achieve a common goal. I also do my best to adhere to the rules and follow instructions, which may encourage my colleagues to do the same.

5. What personal or professional accomplishments are you most proud of?

I can say that becoming a husband and father is one of, if not the greatest, accomplishments that I am most proud of. My family gives me the motivation I need to keep going and appreciate life more deeply. It has given me the opportunity to become the father I always wanted to be, a good provider, and hopefully someday a role model that my children can be proud of.

This also influences the way I work, as they serve as a reminder that they are counting on me to do the right thing and always do my best in everything that I do. Life becomes much more meaningful when you have dreams and goals to share with the people you value most.
